President Roosevelt's propensity for "butting in," to use the popular phrase, was never better illustrated than in the hand he is taking in the fight to compel Arizona to vote in favor of joint statehood with New Mexico. The president has written and has caused to be published a letter to one of his Arizona friends. He tells at some length of his interest in and his affection for Arizona from that territory for his "rough rider" regiment. Mr. Roosevelt says flatly that he is very anxious indeed to have Arizona come into the Union with New Mexico.

From another source it is learned that the administration intends to send prominent speakers to Arizona to advocate joint statehood, and that the president himself may be heard there at some time during the campaign. It is intimated, too, that the friends of joint statehood will have unlimited means with which to conduct their fight, and that most of the money will come from outside of the state. Now we do not know how the citizens of Arizona feel about the matter, but to us it seems the

With the citizens of Arizona a very decided difference will be made. Their homes are there, their property interests are at stake. And they are perfectly comnetent to decide for themselves.

They need neither the advice nor the consent of outsiders. If they want joint statehood they will vote for joint statehood. If they don't want it they will vote the proposition down. They are the best judges. It is confidently believed that Arizona will return a majority against joint statehood, for at the time the bill was before congress numerous expressions of this sort were heard. But it may be said with final emphasis that no outsider will have a right to criticize Arizona, no matter what the outcome may be. And by the same token, no outsider has any right to interfere

THE PLAINT OF PATERSON.

Paterson, the New Jersey town where the silk comes from, has raised an interesting issue as to the legal responsibility of a publication which has libeled a whole community. Collier's Weekly published a special contribution on anarchists in America, in the course of which the author emphasized Paterson's unenviable notoriety as the home of anarchists in this country. Although the statements published seemed based on facts, the people of the Jersey town were exceedingly incensed and in the council authorized their officials to see whether legal proceedings against Collier's would lie. country. In common sense it would families to be in the same fix: appear that a community which has been damaged by an untrue publication should be able to recover damages. But how could the verdict be determined, supposing the amount were limited to actual injury done and not including punitive damages? The harm of such a publication is in the prevention of investments rather than in the stoppage of business, and it would be difficult to determine just what Paterson's loss, for instance, is through the publication at issue. Probably no man who figured on a new place for manufactures or residence would be encouraged to choose the silk center if he had read the story complained of; and it is undoubtedly injurious to a city to Fourth of July came at least once a have its good name assailed by inter- week. ence as in this case; but like the indictment of a whole people, the wholesale recovery of damages by a city would pave the way for some remark-

The nation at large, according to the report, did not make as good a record in 1906 as in 1905. There is an increase of about $7,000,000 in liabilities and 400 in failures. We are told, though, that a gloomy view of the situation must not be taken. The report says:

Distinct improvement is noted in manufacturing insolvencies—1,260 failures for $21,989,522 comparing with 1,426 last year, when the amount involved was $23,343,-220. Trading failures also make a favorable comparison—4,154 comparing with 4,624, while the defaulted indebtedness was $25,506,978, against $28,894,578 in 1995. The only adverse exhibit appears in the

Every state, indeed, except California, had more extensive failures in 1906 than in 1905, and had it not been for California the general showing of the division for 1906 would have been worse than that for 1905.

California shows a decrease of 102 in the number of failures, and a falling off of $900,000 in the total liabilities. Utah had more failures, but the liabilities were smaller by just $113. That is certainly cutting it rather fine. The worst proportionate showing is made by Ida-
